Join Us for Pizza and Stay for a Tango!

By Adrian Richfield

arm up a winter afternoon on Sunday, January 8, when the CEEW Adult Education Committee offers a pizza lunch followed by a screening of the 2021 dance comedy film Tango Shalom.

Cheese and/or vegetarian pizza from Papa Murphy's will be served with drinks and dessert at 11:45, and gluten-free options are available. The movie will start at 12:30 p.m. in the sanctuary.

Tango Shalom premiered at the 2021 Brooklyn Film Festival and went on to win 22 film festival awards. The story of a rabbi who enters a dance competition while staying faithful to his Orthodox beliefs – with the help of a Catholic priest, a Muslim imam, and a Sikh holy man – is rated PG-13.

The cost for lunch and the movie is $10, and you must RSVP to Elaine Goldberg by January 4. (If you only want to see the movie, you can pay $5 at the door.) Friends and family are welcome!

Respond with names and checks (payable to CEEW) sent to Elaine at 1165 Club Circle Apt. 13W, Brookfield, WI 53005. Or, call her at 240-447-3849 to make your reservation, and pay in person on the day of the event. *

December's Dinner and a Movie: Itzhak

By Adrian Richfield

On a snowy Saturday night December 17th, Adult Education showed an inspiring documentary film along with a delicious Chinese dinner at CEEW.

What promised to be a joyful film about a joyful person was spot on and enjoyed by everyone who attended. Starting with a Chinese buffet dinner and followed with a Havdalah service, the story of Yitzhak Perlman was a delight as we followed him from his early years up to his present life with wonderful bits of his virtuosity on the violin.

It's not often our audience claps at the end of a movie! Thanks to all who participated, including those who helped with the program.

Everyone Needs to be a Member of this Temple Committee

ne of the biggest differences between CEEW and the other congregations I have served is the often-enthusiastic willingness of the members to volunteer in all sorts of ways. Our congregants often do things that would be done by paid staff at larger institutions. I have found this spirit of volunteerism inspiring, and I believe it creates a greater sense of "ownership" among the membership. Another level of participation occurs at the committee level, where members who have a particular interest in an aspect of temple life can help shape the life of the temple. People who are passionate about adult education can volunteer to serve on the Adult Ed Committee. But there is one committee that needs every congregant as a member: the Membership Committee.

Congregation Emanu-El has a Membership Committee that meets regularly (often on Zoom) to discuss the crucial topics of recruitment and retention of members. But I would love to see the spirit of volunteerism that is often on display at CEEW extend to this committee. To paraphrase

Cantor's Column

By Cantor Martin Levson, CEEW Sole/Soul Spiritual Leader

our Passover Haggadah, "Every member of CEEW should look upon themselves as if they personally belong to the Membership Committee." This doesn't mean that everyone needs to attend regular committee meetings, but it does mean that every one of us needs to constantly be aware of opportunities to potentially grow our membership.

An example: We had a lovely dinner before Shabbat services last month; the first one since I have been your Spiritual Leader. I know there were significant outreach efforts by the temple leadership to get unaffiliated people to attend this dinner and service. Ultimately, one non-member couple joined us that evening for the dinner and the service. Why were they there? Because a member couple personally invited them to attend with them! This couple does not attend Membership Committee meetings, but they saw the opportunity for engagement, and they said, "Our Temple is having a dinner before services this coming Friday. Would you like to come with us? It should be a lovely evening."

We have lots to be proud of here at CEEW. We are a small congregation offering a compelling and dynamic expression of progressive Judaism here in Waukesha County. Many of you know people who are Jewish but are currently unaffiliated. Many of you know former members of CEEW who, for whatever reasons, are no longer members. Reach out to them and say, "I know you left the Temple some years ago, but we are a different place today. Would you please join us this Friday night? I know there would be lots of people that would be thrilled to see you." Let's all work together to help grow the membership of our little Temple, so we can continue to be a place where we all "Serve the Holy One with Joy!" 🌣 would like to take this opportunity to say Happy (Secular) New Year to the congregation! The 2022 religious school year has been going well. We started off with Family Rosh HaShanah and Yom Kippur services and then celebrated Sukkot at Mark and Cindy Levy's home and Simchat Torah at the temple. This year we have been learning the values of: teshuva (return/repentance), b'tzelem elohim (in God's image) and gevurah (strength – spiritual courage). We took a field trip to Jewish Museum Milwaukee with students from Congregation Emanu-El B'nai Jeshu-run and explored the exhibit Jews in Space. Thank you to the Coalition for Jewish Learning, the Education Department of the Milwaukee Jewish Federation, for sponsoring our field trip.

The month of December ended with our annual Chanukah fun day.

Thank you to Morah Marie and Elizabeth Hamlin for making our bimuelos (a Ladino derivation of the Spanish buneolos, meaning fritters or fried donuts) delicious. They are one of the foods emblematic of Marranos. Thank you to Mark and Cindy Levy for lending us their hot plate for Nicole and Jon Ogden and Jennifer Ecker to melt wax to make a candle so that each person could take home a candle to "light one candle for..." whoever we wanted to recall or join our Chanukah celebrations at home. Our students each created a shield to represent their family identity. We asked the students to learn from their parents about their heritage (where did their grandparents or great-grandparents come from; how did their family get to Wisconsin?) and to think about what values and things they enjoy doing together as a family.

I look forward to learning more Jewish values with our students and celebrating the holidays of Tu b'shevat, Purim, Passover, and Yom Ha'Atzmaut with everyone.

The CEEW Dining Group will meet on January 15 for lunch at Bullwinkles at the Galleria. Contact Elly Kraines at ellyanna340@gmail.com to join the group.

December 2022 CEEW Board Minutes

By Pati Allen Brickman

This is a "highlights" version of the minutes. For a full version, email Board Secretary Pati Allen Brinkman at pati.brickman@gmail.com.

Spiritual Leader's Report

Last month Cantor was unable to return to Massachusetts due to his wife's illness, so the Meyers took him in for Thanksgiving. He is planning to go to MA leaving on 12/28 returning 1/3. During that time, Rabbi Adams will be available for emergencies.

Education Director Report

ARJE has granted $350 grant to go to the ARJE conference in January 23-25, 2023, in Houston, TX. Sunday 12/11 the school and cantor went to the Jewish Museum of Milwaukee to see the Jews in Space exhibition. The Coalition for Jewish Learning helped fund the trip.

President's Report

Visitor's Shabbat: The Shabbat Potluck on 12/9 was wonderful although we had very few visitors. We will certainly do this again. All congregants should consider themselves one of the Membership Committee and be active about inviting friends to join us for our programs and services.

Mari-Claire will work with Cantor Levson and Ann Meyer to update the Ritual Committee bylaws.

Treasurer's Report

Five months into the fiscal year is 42% of the year and at this point our total expenses are 40% of our budgeted expenses. That sounds good, but the budget we have is not balanced. Not spending money is helpful. Finding more income is more helpful. Laurie reminds us that we should think seriously about making end-of-year contributions to the temple.

Sisterhood Report

Denise reported that 80 Hanukkah cards have been mailed. Upcoming programs will include April 18 Card Making with Barb Zacher, May 2 Mizrahi Cooking with Hannah Sattler. A program on Unusual Occupations featuring Andi Patz is being planned with date to be determined. The Sisterhood board voted to change the Camping Scholarship requirements so that all members of CEEW will now be eligible to apply for a camp scholarship for their children or grandchildren.

Committee Reports

Facilities and Security: Plans for security guards for the quarter will be completed soon. Laurie will find someone to change lights on the south and west sides and she has volunteered to pay for that.

Old Business

Security Grant: FEMA and the state have accepted our plan. There is yet one more form outstanding before we can hire the contractors. Since we must have the work done prior to being reimbursed by the government, Laurie and Alan will work with Rick Steinberg to put together a promissory note for interest free loans from our members.

The next CEEW Board meeting will be January 16, 2023, at 6:30 p.m. ❖

Jewish Camping and Horsing Around

President's Letter

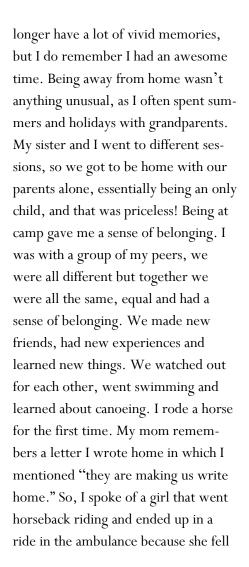

From the desk of Denise Stodola

The CEEW Sisterhood board met on December 6th, and eventually our attention turned to a discussion on camp scholarships. The current Sisterhood board felt so strongly that the Jewish camping experience is critical to the development of our Jewish youth, that we voted to change the Camping Scholarship requirements. All members of CEEW will now be eligible to apply for a camp scholarship for their children or grandchildren. For more information on how to apply for a CEEW Sisterhood Camp Scholarship see the article on "Camp Scholarships Available."

During the discussion on camping scholarships, I began remembering my own experiences at Phantom Lake YMCA camp in Mukwonago. I was a camper for a few years as a grade schooler. I was not raised Jewish and Phantom Lake was a Christian based camp, but in many ways the experiences are probably similar. You must keep in mind that I was camper in grade school about 50 years ago. I no off the horse and got hurt. In the same letter, I wrote that I had to go because I was going horseback riding! It was my first riding experience and I didn't ride again until I was 18 with my bestie, but I remembered what to do! Sadly, I have not ridden again. Maybe I should add this to my bucket list?

Today, I believe being able to give a Jewish child the gift of going Jewish camp is so very important. Especially in our Synagogue where they are most likely the only or one of a few Jewish children in school, the ability to spend time and experience being with other Jews their age is priceless. It has been said that the Jewish camping experience does more to instill Judaism than any other experience. Cantor Levson has often spoken of all of the Rabbis and Cantors that came out of the camp he attended as a child.

More than anything, I remember how camp gave me a sense of belonging. It is one of the reasons I chose to become a member of Sisterhood. I joined before I converted to Judaism, because I needed that sense of belonging and being among friends. I became co-president of the CEEW Sisterhood because Sisterhood is an important and necessary part of CEEW (and also, I could not say no to Alice Lambie, a longtime family friend whom I love dearly).

Sisterhood fundraises to support our future generation. The CEEW Sisterhood does this by supporting the religious school needs and camp scholarships. If you have children or grandchildren, consider giving them the gift of a Jewish camping experience. If you don't, consider supporting the CEEW Sisterhood's fundraising activities to help make the Jewish camp experiences possible for other children and grandchildren in our congregation.

Camper Scholarships Available

From the desk of Cindy Levy

A Jewish camping experience can change your life. The Sisterhood is delighted to have helped make the experience possible. Right now, camps are preparing to make the Summer of 2023 happen and so are we!

If you are a member of the CEEW and have a child or grandchild who will be attending a Jewish camp in 2023, you may be eligible for a camper scholarship.

Sisterhood News

The Sisterhood is taking applications for camp scholarships through March 31st. Any CEEW member as of December 31, 2022 can apply. Notification of awards will be made on or before April 15th. Contact Cindy Levy at ceew_sisterhood@yahoo.com for an application.

Be aware that other organizations and individual camps also have scholar-ships available. Many of the Union for Reform Judaism (URJ) camps provide scholarships, including OSRUI in our own backyard. For example, the Milwaukee Jewish Federation has two programs with March 1 deadlines. Happy Camping!

Adult Education: Coming Programs

Window on Winter by Marcy Hotz

A fine, frosty fleece falls, dusting dirt that once was a walkway. Finding corn and crumbs, six squirrels scurry for food, as coal-colored crows watch from above. "Caw, caw, caw!" cries one, waiting in the wintry wind.

Silent Snowfall by Marcy Hotz

Fresh sparkling snow blankets trees and roads.

We welcome the silent snowfall, finding joy in the stark renewal of the landscape.

Bright red cardinals flit from branch to feeder, plopping a small pile of frozen whiteness to the icy ground below.

Quiet serenity is interrupted by the sound of an engine.

Good, the plow has arrived.

Reading Your Way through the Cold Months

The CEEW Book Club is on hiatus this month, but that's no reason to stop reading! The colder weather may give us more opportunity to stay snuggled up at home and catch up on our TBR (to be read) lists.

Here are some recent books recommended in the November/
December 2022 issue of *Hadassah*Magazine. The link for each book goes to its listing at Amazon Smile. If you have CEEW set up as the beneficiary on your Smile account, each purchase benefits our temple.

Women Holding Things, by Natalia Ginzburg. This life-affirming book shines a light on women's lives and how we all hold our humanity.

Before All the World, by Moriel Rothman-Zecher. This Jerusalem-born author's book is an inventive novel that overlays Yiddish inflection

When Franny Stands Up, by Eden Robbins. This debut novel is set in early 1950s Chicago, where protagonist Franny Steinberg wants to make people laugh and attempts doing stand-up comedy. This dialogue-driven novel is daring, entertaining, and moving.

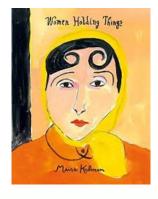

A Brilliant Commodity: Diamonds and Jews in a Modern Setting, by Saskia Snyder. This book examines the global market for diamonds, from mining rough stones to trading gems to wearing brilliant jewels — and the role of Jewish entrepreneurs on several continents.

Answering the Call to Green Judaism

By Sxdni Small

"But Becky does it!" I wailed as I watched the expression on my father's face change from one of focus on the task at hand, to a stern countenance at my act of littering. We'd just returned home from the store and were about to unload provisions. One of my favorite early childhood ways to spend time with him was on trips to the market. I enjoyed his gentle and quiet presence and the possibility of choosing some edible delight to satisfy my sweet tooth. The particular treat of choice that afternoon happened to be a pack of Bubblicious watermelon gum, which I and many of my friends found worthy of epic wads that our mouths could barely hold. As he and I stepped onto the warm pavement, I hap-hazardly tossed the wrapper debris behind me, where it swirled to the curb. That decision became the first and last time I would perform such an act, as I hadn't seen this usually-patient man go from concern to strong anger in such a short amount of time.

"You go get that right now — I don't care what your friends do! We don't do that in this house." I hastily ran to get the silver remnants and stuffed them in my shorts pocket. While I don't remember the remaining discussion about environmental caretaking, the personal alarm he expressed over the despoiling of nature sticks with me to this day.

Household values in my youth about diversity included appreciation of the natural world and the variety of inhabitants the earth supported. My mother's cozy garden and my father's impromptu conservation lesson served to illustrate a very Jewish teaching, which is illustrated by the phrase "bal tashchit" on the Reform Judaism website. The term refers to the Jewish concept of "do not destroy." Our mandate as a people urges us to be caretakers of that which was created by or in the presence of, the Divine/Universe. There are many ways individuals can work toward sustainability, including options such as composting and rain barrels.

Congregant Marcy Hotz says that "It's not easy being green. But it can be fun, and I feel like I'm doing something for my home planet when I do it." In addition to recycling and providing donations, she also buys "...things, especially clothing, from resale shops, uses the primarily organic fertilizer Milorganite and avoids Styrofoam."

There are a variety of Jewish groups that focus on ecopreservation, such as Hazon, The Jewish Climate Action Network, the Coalition on the Environment and Jewish Life and Dayenu: A Jewish Call to Climate Action. All of these associations focus on particular elements of earth justice, such as climate change, environmental awareness and Jewish institutions as well as connections between green solutions and social action.

The Jewish Women's Archive also has a page entitled "Jewish Women and Environmental Activism" which details a number of people and organizations leading the charge for environmental accountability.

"Eco-Kosher" is another component of resource protection, stemming from Rabbi Zalman Schachter-Shalomi <z''l>, one of the founders of the Jewish Renewal Movment. Reb Zalman re-imagined Jewish institutional life through combining elements of his Hassidic roots, providing creative and physical expression in worship and incorporating social change as part of Jewish practice. Part of that social change involved awareness of the way food and agricultural systems impact the earth and her creatures, including humans.

Today's Eco-Kashrut certification provides a set of criteria that go a step farther than the traditional kosher standards. The initiative also "...promotes respect for one's body and that of the earth, while honoring and protecting those who labor to grow the food we eat." The program has 6 Guiding Principles, which can be found in the box below.
